WOMAN'S TRIALS.

Her Bitter Disappointment.

The otter trail in a woman's life is to be childless. Who can tell how hard the struggle may have been ere she learnt to resign herself to her lonely lot? The absence of this link to bind marital life to muthal affection is a common disappointment. Many unfortunate couples become estranged thereby. Even if they do not drift apart, one may read the whole extent of their disappointment in the eyes of such a childless couple when they rest on the children of others. To them the largest family does not seem too numerous. It will rather appear to them that those on whom this blessing has been most outpet. It will rather appear to them that those on whom this blessing has been most richly bestowed hardly value it suffi-

In many cases of barrenness or child-lessness the obstacle to child-bearing is easily removed by the cure of weakness on the part of the woman. Dr. Pierce's Fa-vorite Prescription has been the means of restoring health and fruitfulness to many a barren woman to the great toy of the restoring health and fruitfulness to many a barren woman, to the great joy of the household. In other, but rare cases, the obstruction to the bearing of children has been found to be of a surgleal character, but easily removable by painless operative treatment at the Invelids' Hotel and Surgleal Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., over which Dr. Pierce of the "Favorite Prescription" fame presides. In all cases where children are desired and are absent, an effort should be made to find out the real cause, since it is generally so easily removed by proper treatment.

In all the various weaknesses, displacements, prolapsus, ante-versions, retroversions, inflammation of ovaries, leucorrhome, giving rise to disagreeable and weakening drains, and in all cases of nervousness, nervous prostration and debility, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the most efficient remedy that can possibly be used. It has to its credit hundreds of thousands of cures—more in fact than any other remedy put up for sale through druggists, especially for woman's use. You do not have to take Dr. Pierce's word alone for this, because the ingredients of which the "Favorite Prescription" are composed have received the most positive endorsement from the leading medical writers on Materia Medica of all the several schools of practice. of all the several schools of practice. It is a powerful invigorating tonic, imparting health and strength in particular to the organs distinctly feminine. The local, womanly health is so intimately related to the general health that when diseases of the delicate womanly organs are cured the whole body gains in health and strength. For weak and sickly women who are "worn-out," "run-down" or debilitated, especially for women who work in store, office or schoolroom, who sit at the typewriter or sewing machine, or bear heavy household burdons, Dr. Pierce's Favorita Prescription has proven a priceless benefit because of its health - restoring and strength-giving powers.

aster which has befallen San Francisco, will materially benefit Salt Lake. Benefit for Zion.

Mr. Porperoy, who recently purchased the Metropolitan hotel corner from Judge Hallett of Denver, said to The Tribune: There is no question in my mind that the disaster which has befallen San Francisco will help Salt Lake. Of course, believe that San Francisco will be rebuilt, but the disaster will prevent many new people from going there and it will also cut down the tourist travel.

Status of Los Angeles.

"I do not believe that Los Angeles will suffer perceptibly from San Francisco's misfortune, although, as I said before, tourist travel will be decreased west of known real estate men of Les Angeles, who are also interested in Salt Lake, and that will affect Les Angeles slightly."

DRESSED THE WOUNDS OF INJURED AT SAN FRANCISCO

Two Utahns Pass Through Conditions Such as Drive People Insane.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Sandberg of this city returned yesterday from San Francisco, where they passed through conditions such as few make and fire. They belied dig the unfortuate out of the ruins, saw the dead rolled in white sheets and buried in long trenches dressed the wounds of the injured at Me share of sleeplers nights under the blue sky, Both declare that the story of San Francisco's destruction can never be written; that there are not words in the English language capable of suggesting to the most vivid imagination the magnitude of the disaster or the terrible Thrown From Their Bed.

- Mr Sandberg, who is a student in the College of Surgeons and Physicians of San Francisco was located in a two-story flat on Folson atreet when the enrihquake occured. The shock just tossed me out of bed and sent me webbling around as if drunk. It was impossible to hold onto anything, the trembling earth jostled me about absolutely at will. Doors stuck fast, while broken glass flew across the room. Dressed in an instant, my wife and I hurried into the street, where women and children, scantily attired rushed wildly about, not knowing where to go. The houses on both sides of us were level with the ground, but miraculously ours had excaped.

Rescued a Girl

Rescued a Girl.

We walked up to the corner of Howard and Fourteenth streets, where a two-story building stretched its ruined form across the street, completely blocking all traffic. There I helped dig out an eighteen-year-old girl, who was taken away unconscious to the hospital. Later the dead bodies of the mother and father were unearthed. From their arms we took a sleeping infant, which did not have a scratch on its body.

Led Away to His Grave.

Led Away to His Grave.

"Leaving this scene of death and destruction, we made our way to the college, which was practically uninjured. A three-story flat nearby had been toppled over so that the top story was level with the sidewalk. A score of men were at work chopping out the buried. We saw two women lead away a gray-haired man, 80 years old. While the blood streamed down his face, he begged to stay until his wife and daughter were rescued from the ruins. But the women lead him away. I think to his grave. He was an awful sight—cut about the face and head so that the streaming blood had mixed with the dirt to form a hideous mask over his grim face.

Aided the Wounded.

Aided the Wounded.

Aided the Wounded.

"From there we went to Fremont house, where my classmate Dr. George V. Schramm of this city, boarded. I went to his room, which he had deserted, getting away safely, however. The roof of the house was caved in; the arches hid fallen, and in his room big cakes of plaster covered the floor. To locate another classmate I went over to Mechanics' pavilion, which had been converted into a hospital. The injured were carried in by the score, and I could not resist going to work. I helped dress the injuries of the wounded, while my wife nursed balles. After I had spent a couple of hours at this work, enough doctors and nurses had arrived to hay die the situation, and so we left for home to get breakfast.

Experience Second Shock.

Experience Second Shock.

'My wife was eating a piece of bread and jelly when the building started to tremble. She made a dash for the door and was tossed from the landing half way down the stairs. In the fall the bread and jelly had plastered liself smack on her face and she looked a sight. At first we thought she had broken her leg in the fall, but it turned out only to be a sprain. After this sarthquake, which happened about 9 o'clock, we were afraid to go back in the house except for an instant. That earthquake was different from any other. I have ever experienced. To the others there has been a little trembling, but this just tossed you up in the air and jestled you around utterly helpless.

Strange Procession.

Strange Procession.

"By 12 o'clock the procession of people who were leaving the city had begun. They were off for the hills or nearby country places. Some had nailed roller skates under their trunks and were pulling them along with rupes, others slid their bagage on rockers, while still citers used small express wagons. Never in my life did I see so many parrots and canaries. Feople half-dressed carried a pet parrot. I saw one fellow who had nothing but a white rat.

Tells Strange Story.

Tells Strange Story.

"About 2 o'clock in the afternoon we wormed down to the fire line and watched the dynamiters blow up buildings. They did some good work and by 2 o clock in the afternoon had the fire checked on Eighth street from Market to Foisom. What I am going to tell you now may seem strange, but it is true. An old woman over on Haight street and Franklin started a kitchen fire to boil some coffee. The chinney was defective and before she knew it her whole house was affame. The firemen and their assistants were concentrating their efforts to check the fire on Eighth street and this new fire got well under way before help could be summoned. I actually believe that but for this fire, due to a strong appetite for coffee, that part of San Francisco on the north side of Market and in the Mission district might have probably been saved. Fires of this character, innecently made, played no little part in the great conflagration. In our own flat an old Futch woman lit a fire to warm some tea or coffee and in an instant the defective flue filled the house with smoke. A marshal happened along and put it out in a minute.

His Home Doomed.

His Home Doomed.

His Home Doomed.

'This new fire made it plain to us that, our place was doomed. When the flames got to Tenth atreet, we decided to leave as our flat was located on Thirteenth street. Filling our trunks and valless, we luckly caught an expressman and drove off to the hill, locating camp behind the Southern Pacific railway shops. That night it was brighter than day—the flames lighted up the country for miles around. Hig pleess of burning roof floated overhead and locked like see many thay for balloons. It was a grand sight, but for the unpleasantness of the incessant downpour of ashes cinders burned paper and charred wood that rained down on our heads. It was especially hard on the bables. That night we did not sleep.

Hustled for Grub.

Hustled for Grub.

"Next morning I got out and hustled grub, We went through Market street and the heat was so intense that we were compelled to remain in the middle of the street. After a breakfast of ham, eggs and coffee, Mr. Draeseke and I, leaving our wives and his children behind, started for Oakland to telegraph Salt Lake friends that we were safs. We were just as anxious to get word to them as they were to use Heard Salt Lake Was Wrecked. "From some official I got the rumor that there had been an earthquake in Salt Lake and the city was on fire. When I told my wife later, she concluded that the whole world must be doomed. It was terrible news to receive at this stage of our experience. We finally got to Oakland, where, after waiting three hours, we filled messages to our Salt Lake friends.

Stopped by Soldiers. Stopped by Soldiers.

Attempting to get back to San Francisco, we were desired entrance, in accordance with Gen. Functon's strict blockade orders. A fellow offered to take us across the Oakland river in a row boat for $20, but we turned him down. Aater, with about fifty others, we boarded a gasoline launch and tolescape Functon's guard at the water front salied around to North Beach. Here we found Chinamen roosting on gurbage dumps with their hands full of chop sticks. Dagos were also there in swarms.

"After a long walk, we finally made our way back to camp. Parsing van Ness avenus I saw about twenty-five dead people wrapped.

'We were fortunate from the standpoint of provisions in having two bables in our camp. Men might starve, women go without a meal but the children and bables must be fed. On all sides this was the universal cry. Mikmen with buckets of fresh milk walked from tent to tent, from door to door from camp to camp, refusing to sell their milk for extravagant prices, but freely giving it away where children could be shown. These milkmen were genuine heroes. Ask for what you would in the name of a baby and your want was gratified.

He again took up his residence at Sheriff Emery's Second South street sanifarium Thursday afternoon and it will, doubtless, he some time before he again breathes the air of freedom. Married in Prison.

Williams is the crook who gained additional otoriety for himself by becoming a bridegroom at the county juli about six weeks ago, with the consent and connivance of Sheriff Emery. He was then and there married to Minerva Reeves, a woman who was serving a term for attempting to murder her sister in a disreputable house on Main street. The marriage of this precious pair was a great shock to the community and brought down upon the head of the Sheriff a storm of denunciation from pulpit, press and public.

Work Made Him Tired. When Williams's term expired he bade his prison wife adieu and went forth, presumably, to prepare a home for her when she should be released in August next. But freedom didn't agree with him. He found it irksome. The very mention of the word work gave him that fatigued feeling and he longed for the hospitable home he had recently left.

Back to the Old Home.

Back to the Old Home.

So back to the bastlie he went, certain of the hearty welcome that awaited him. He was thoroughly soaked with whisky when he arrived and that was sufficient reason for his admission to the crooks paradise. Sheriff Emery, that good kind man, greeted his late guest with open arms and Deputy Sheriff Burbidge grabbed his old friend and hugged him to his yearning heart. Joy reigned in the hearts of host and guest and when the big inner gate swung open, admitting the maudin thief to the general assembly room, the happy ones within joined hands and sang a merry, merry roundelay in honor of the prodigal's return.

STORM CUTS INTO PLANS University Students Prevented From

Reburnishing U on Mountain Side. The storm cut into the plans of university students and prevented them from fixing up the "U" on the hillside as they had planned. Despite the rawness of the morning and the failing snow and rain, many of the students gathered at the campus early in the morning as sgreed. Investigation proved, however, that any efforts to carry out the work planned would be futtle.

Will Be Reburnished.

It is quite certain, however, that the "U" will be reburnished and given a new coat of lime before many days. Some of the upper classmen are already planning to do the work, either some morning or afternoon, when it shall be found convenient to the majority of the students.

Favors Spring Day.

Discussing the matter of fixing up the "U" and giving it a new coat of lime, one of the prominent professors said: "I am heartily in favor of a spring day, such as they have at Cornell. Let the fixing of the "U" be only one of the many events on the day's programme. Have a circus with side shows as they do at Cornell and raise money for athletics. At Michigan they have a county fair and to students of that institution the fair is one of the big events of their college life.
